SHE LOVED HIM NOT.

Another Man than Koch the Cause of Emilie Rossi's Suicide.

But His Passion Led Him to Join Her in the Dust of Death.

He Was the Hero of a Sensational Episode in a Catskills Resort.

Additional facts learned this morning seem to indicate that the young actress.
Emilie Rosst, killed herself for love of a man in Germany, whom her mother forbade her to marry, and that Gustave Koch committed suicide because Emilie would not marry him, and had determined to end an existence grown dark and unbearable to her.

"Felix" is the only name by which the man across the seas is known to the dead giri's cousins, Miss Lottie and Miss Martha Pells, and to Madame Knoren, in whose house, at Canal street and the Bowers, Miss Rossi sped the fatal bullet through her

She told me once of her great love for Felix, " said Mme. Knorra to an Eventso Works reporter this morning, and told me also that she would have married him. " Why did you not?" I asked her.
"She turned her beautiful black eyes, full of tears, towards me, and replied:

"'Oh, suntie, how could by My mother gave me my choice. "Felix or me," she said, and I abided by her; but that led to our first seven a part of the said. our first serious quarrel and was the opening wedge for the breach that eventually came between us."

'This is a picture of him," said Miss Lottie Pells, displaying to view a tintype of a handsome young man that had been taken in Germany in 1888. At the top of the picture were the words in German: "In remembrance-May, 1888."

'but she never would talk much CRIED OVER HER LOVER'S PICTURE.

"She cried over his picture Wednesday. when she was burning all her old letters and things, " interjected Miss Martha Pells. She took the letter, with the work of beliotrope in it, out of her jewel box, and then held this picture by the side of the let.

While there are no actual negotiations yet then held this picture by the side of the letter while she read it over and over again.

Then she set the thi-type on the mantel by her father's photograph, and

Koch was anything more than a dear friend to the feast of rejoicing. to the dead girl. WHY ROCH DIED, TOO, Emilie Rossi came to the city for the first ime in October, 1888, under a season's en-oragement to Manager Amberg, and went to loard at the house of Mrs. Niemerer, at 212 last Eleventh street, and there met koch. He was married then, but was suing for itoree from his wite time Koch had found mmistakable evidence of his wife's guilty ove for his best friend, dietfried Lands-nan.

The latter had roomed with Koch until Koch married the praity seventeen-year-old daughter of his landiady. Annie Schneider, in July, 1886, and the young couple went to live in East Eleventh street. BETRAYED BY HIS PRICTY WIFE, Landsman, who is an expert Custom-louse examiner, was a frequent guest at is old friend's house. In the latter part at figust, 1848, both sent his prefty young ite to heard at the village or Margaretwite to heard at the village or margarety ville, in the Catskills.

A day or so later Landsman told Koch that he was going to Griffin's Corners in the Catskills on a wastion, Griffin's was only a few roles from Margaretville, and a few days later Mrs. Koch wrote to her hasband, casually remarking that "Godfrey had not hiked it at the Corners and as had some over to her place to er, and so had gone over to her place to ier, and so had gone over to her account."

This aroused Koch's suspicions and he engaged Lawver Isaac H. Falk, a brother of his employer. Photographer Falk, to go with him to the Catskills and secure evidence, if there was any, of her indicitly, they reached there the evening of Sept. They reacted there the evening of Sept. 6, 1882, quite into and first paid a visit to Mire. Rock's rooms. Her wearing apparel ayin a heapon a chair by her bed, which had not been short in. and her night robe and alippers were missing.

CAUGHT BY A PLASS LIGHT.

Stepping across the hall koch hirst in the door of Lawdenain's room, where Lawyer Falk, who carried a detective canera, took a focus on a contine of sleepers in the best, and ley the flash of an overpowaring magnesism light a picture of the smilty pair was instantaneously taken.

A highly dramatic score ensued, hoch attempted to wreak vengeance on his false friend, but was presented.

That same night Koch aroused a scuire and served the papers in a sout for divorce. When the gard came to trial, the flash light picture figured prominently, and the divorce was of course, granted.

His devile confidence. CARGIST BY A PLANE LIGHT.

Subsequently Landsmann married Mrs. Ruch. All these facts Ruch poured into the sympathetic ears of Miss lines; and the became his very good friend, while he became he has he had not became the part of the contract of the sympathetic enterprises.

seer himself, and arrived here on the 6th of POINTERS ON THE RACES. MET HER ON THE PIER.

MIST UPEN ON THE PUER.

Koch was at the pier to meet her. They went direct to Mmo. Knorre's brokes, where the grit saked permission to star a few days while she was booking for another room.

'I have no money though, 'she said.

Mme. Knorre replied to her, 'I don't want your moder, little rae, You stay here as long as you like as my givest.

'Miss Poss' was only temporarily embergased financially. The brought back with her the portrait drawn by Koch, and Mrs. Knorre gave her a hardsome cut frame for it and it was piaced on exhibition in the lobby of Amberz's Theatre.

Kech was continually calling on the girl, but last Monday right she broke as singagement with him to go to Nibio's with Mrs. Knorre. There was a scene in the play there where a girl runs through a wool on the stage crying. 'Oh, mother, save me! Oh, mother, you can help me."

This stage scope affected the emotional young actress so much that she burst out crying and became so hysterical that Mms. Knorrn had to assist her out of the theatre. "What is the matter? Have you quarreled with your mother?" asked the lady.

relet with your mother; "saked the lady, kindly.
"Oh, she is so hard, so hard! I cannot talk about it now. I will tell you all my troubles some time, "she replied, and they went home.

After the first few days following her return Emelic did not speak any increasion leaving her little room so the third floor front, of the Canai attreet house, and Mrs. Knorh was only too glad to keep her.

Knorh was very cheerful also for the first week after she came back and tried to take her out to places of anneament and entertain her, but she did not some to care much for his company, and then, it is thought, she made up her mind to die.

The theory of her friends that she died for

The theory of her friends that she died for love of Felix is pertly borne out by the first lew lines of the last letter she left for Mrs. Knorm, is which she wrote:

'Once more pardon. I also not desire to die anywhere else but with you. Koch would not permit it. I told K, everything. He did everything to fascinate me.

'Next month he was going to have a large forture for me. Nothing could prevent me, and as Gustave has loved me too much to be characted from me one moment, and I would not die with hum, so he has gone before. Peace to his grave, pure his soul.

THERE WAS PERFECT AGREEMENT.

THERE WAS PERFECT AGREEMENT.

She told him everything. He tried to hange her purpose. He promised her money next month. Nothing could prevent let, though, and then as he loved her, so her, though, and then as he loved her, so he would go with her.

There is no hint in her lotter of any love for him—only his passion for her. This is the interpretation her friends now put upon her last written lines.
